

Phone Poem

July 7, 2016

baby got a place | got another heart beat I heard it pounding in the dark then but could not find it any longer baby I got away to feel another heart beat I fell awake into his arms and and I never thought it anyway but I would have waited here unto his heart beat

I would have waited till he found out I don't want him any longer

But I would have said just listen to this heart beat You could have longed and followed all them

And never really even known it Even though it was the strongest we don't need it any longer

It's just like dreaming it's just like all them. They don't really understand I'm on the beat never thought I would be Can't crawl away from in your arms and Cannot fight it any longer